PREFACE.

This catalogue is issued in pursuance of authority conferred by section 370 of the revised statutes. The last catologue was prepared in 1872. The growth of the library since that time has been rapid. The broken sets of reports have been completed, while the increase of text books, digests, tables of cases, law periodicals, statutes, session laws and documents has been large. When the last catalogue was prepared there were in the library a considerable number of literary and historical works. In pursuance of an act of the legislature of 1875 these were transferred to the State Historical Society, with the exception of a few volumes of cyclopaedias, dictionaries, histories, and works of similar character, which are indispensable to a good law library. The large increase of law books and the change in the character of the library, making it wholly one of law, makes the publication of a new catalogue very desirable.

The plan of the first part of this catalogue is radically different from that adopted in the preparation of the one issued in 1872. It has seemed to the compiler that a catalogue by subjects would be more useful than one by authors; and experience has tended to strongly confirm that impression. The plan pursued shows at a glance all the works in the library on any given topic; the dates and editors of the several editions, and also groups together not only all the text books on the subject, but the volumes of leading cases, reports and digests which are specially devoted to it. Cross references are frequently introduced, and it is hoped that they will be found useful. It is but just to state that very much aid has been derived in its preparation from a digest of law publications issued by Robert Clarke & Co., of Cincinnati, in 1877. Following this part is an alphabetical index of authors, with a condensed title of their works. As attorneys and others may desire to consult this catalogue before coming to the capitol, the titles of the elementary works have been given with considerable fullness. On application, the librarian will take pleasure in forwarding a copy to any one who may desire it.

The reports are catalogued alphabetically by the reporters' names. Under the name of each state will be found a chronological list of its reports, and at the end of this part a similar list of the British law reports, accompanied by a table of the regnal years of the English soverigns. "These adjuncts of the catalogue may be found convenient in determining readily the exact period of a reported decision, or in tracing the stream of judicial authority upon any legal question which may be the subject of investigation."

HISTORY OF THE STATE LIBRARY.

"The State Library had its origin in the generous appropriation of $5,000 out of the general treasury, by congress, contained in the seventeenth section of the organic act, creating the territory of Wisconsin. At the first session of the territorial legislature, held at Belmont in 1836, a joint resolution was adopted, appointing the Hon. John M. Clayton, of Delaware (through whose instrumentality the clause in the organic act making the appropriation was inserted), Hon. Lewis F. Linn, of Missouri, Hon. G. W. Jones, then delegate in congress from this territory (which at that time included what now constitutes the state of Iowa, as well as Wisconsin), and Hon. Peter Hill Engle, the speaker of the first territorial house of representatives, a committee to select and purchase a library for the use of the territory, and authorizing them to draw the sum appropriated for that purpose from the federal treasury. Mr. Engle was the active member of the committee, and made the selections and purchases, with the approval of the other members. James Clarke, publisher of the Belmont Gazette, and first territorial printer, was the first librarian."

"The first appropriation by the state, to replenish the library, was made in 1851. The sum of $2,500 was then appropriated to be expended, under the direction of Gov. Dewey, in the purchase of law books. Subsequently, in 1854, the sum of $3,000 was appropriated for law and miscellaneous works; and in 1857 the additional appropriation of $1,000 was made for the same purpose together with a standing appropriation of $250 for such additions to the law and miscellaneous departments of the library as might from time to time be deemed desirable."

In 1864 the annual appropriation was increased to $500, and two years later the additional sum of $600 was placed at the disposal ot the governor for the purpose of supplying deficiencies in the law department. These appropriations were continued until 1877, when the annual appropriation was increased to $1,500.

The purchase of miscellaneous works for the library was virtually discontinued in 1866, except that purchases were subsequently made for completing imperfect sets of works of reference. In 1875 the miscellaneous works were transferred to the State Historical Society. Since that time, the condition of the library as a state law library has rapidly improved. It stands among the best in the states of the great northwest, and, with its present resources, will be able to maintain the high position it occupies.

RULES AND REGULATIONS

OF THE

WISCONSIN STATE LIBRARY.

RULE I.

The library shall be kept open every day except Sundays and legal holidays.

RULE II.

During sessions of the supreme court or the legislature the library shall be open from nine o'clock, A. M. to half past twelve o'clock, P. M., and from two o'clock. P. M. to half past five o'clock, P. M., and from seven o'clock, P. M. to nine o'clock, P. M., except on Saturdays, when it may be closed at half past five. At other times it shall be open from nine o'clock, A. M. to twelve M., and from two to five o'clock P. M.

RULE III.

SECTION 1. The state librarian shall be accountable for any book that is missing, and for every injury which a book may receive during his term of office, excepting such as may be occasioned by ordinary use, and he shall be relieved from such accountability only by showing that some other person is responsible for such book or injury, without any fault of his.

SECTION 2. He shall keep a catalogue of all the books belonging to the library.

SECTION 3. He shall keep a book of record, in which the titles or names of all books or pamphlets received by donation, exchange or purchase, shall be entered.

SECTION 4. He shall keep a memorandum book in which he shall enter the title of every book taken from the library, the date when taken, and the name of the person taking the same. For every violation of this rule, he shall forfeit one dollar, to be deducted from his salary.

SECTION 5. He shall see that the library room is kept clean and in good order, and shall carefully preserve the books and furniture belonging thereto and permit none to be taken therefrom, unless expressly authorized by law or the trustees.

SECTION 6. He shall preserve order, and permit no talking incompatible with quiet reading or copying, and shall exclude, if necessary, disorderly persons.

RULE IV.

SECTION 1. No book can be taken from the library except for use in the supreme court room or the rooms of the justices of the supreme court, until its title and the name of the person taking it have been registered by the librarian.

SECTION 2. Books for the use of state officers must be ordered in writing by them or their assistants. No state officer or member or officer of the legislature shall draw books from the library for the purpose of loaning them to others. In no case shall books be taken from the capitol, except as provided in subdivision two of section 369, R. S. of 1878.

SECTION 3. No book can be detained more than five days, and if needed in the library shall be subject to the order of the librarian at any time.

SECTION 4. Every person taking a book shall be answerable for all damages it may sustain, and if it be destroyed or lost he shall pay the value thereof, or if it is one of a set, the value of the set to which it belongs.

SECTION 5. All fines, penalties and forfeitures shall be determined and collected by the librarian.

SECTION 6. An appeal from the above fines, penalties and forfeitures may be made to the trustees.

SECTION 7. The marking of books with ink or pencil is forbidden.

RULE V.

During the sessions of the supreme court or the legislature preference in the use of the library must be given to members of the bar and legislature.

RULE VI.

No person shall be allowed access to the library, except during the hours it is directed to be open, without the authority of the librarian, or a member of the board of trustees.
